What are amalgam fillings?

Most people recognize dental amalgams as silver fillings. Dental amalgam is a mixture of mercury, silver, tin and copper. Mercury, which makes up about 50 percent of the compound, is necessary to bind the metals together to provide a strong, hard, durable filling. After years of research, mercury continues to be the only element that will bind these metals together in such a way that it can be easily manipulated to fill a cavity. Amalgam fillings are retained mechanically. This allows them to expand and contract. Over time this expansion/contraction leads to leakage and eventually broken fillings.

What are resin composite fillings?

Resin composite fillings are made of ceramic and plastic compounds. Because resins mimic the appearance of natural teeth, these fillings have been used in front teeth for years. When they first appeared, however, resin compounds weren't strong enough to be used in back teeth, where high-pressure grinding and chewing require greater durability.

In the past 10 years, technology has improved enough to allow the use of resin material in posterior or back teeth. Still, many dental plans don't cover resin fillings in teeth that aren't visible in a smile. Resin composite fillings are chemically bonded to the natural tooth. This prevents expansion and contraction, and thereby, leakage.

What White Knoll Comprehensive Dentistry offers?

In keeping with current standards of care, our doctors choose to place resin composite fillings only. Your insurance may or may not elect to cover them. Some plans, in an effort to keep their own costs down, will only allow for the cost of an outdated amalgam filling. We are happy to file with your insurance as a courtesy, however please keep in mind, the remaining balance will fall upon the patient.
